WE CAN'T EXPLAIN IT

We have often wondered why it is that a smooth talking stranger with a flashy front can come to Farmington and sell a lot of stuff that usually can be had at our own stores, pocket the money and get out of town with good grace, while if a fellow residing here tried the same thing he would starve to death the first week.

We have noticed, too, that not only are many of our people more inclined to trade with a stranger than with a neighbor, but our business men, as a rule, are just as easy. A stranger can come through with an advertising scheme that is wholly without merit and yet, by the aid of smooth talk and fancy figures he can unload his space or his advertising novelty on the very business men who hesitate and hum and haw for hours when the matter of space in their home newspaper is mentioned. Yet they know that the home paper goes right into the hands of the very people they must sell their goods to.

We confess that we have never been able to figure it out. We've wondered why some people can't refuse a stranger's plea for an order, yet can turn right around and tell someone who lives here and who is also trying to make a living that they don't care to buy. Agents come and agents go, and always they take more out of town than they leave in it. Yet there always seems to be a welcome for them at the homes of a good many people, well meaning people, too, who haven't learned to say "NO" to a stranger, but who can flatly refuse to encourage a neighbor who is a thousand times more entitled to their trade. We can't understand it—much less explain it.

WIFE DOING GOOD WORK

"I have been bad off with stomach and liver trouble and bloating for many years. No doctors or medicine helped me. On the advice of my druggist, I bought a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I don't want to miss a single dose. It has given me more benefit than all the medicine I have taken. I feel I am doing good to recommend it to others." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At E. M. Laakman's, and druggists everywhere.
